CEI at NEWEA 2015 Spring Meeting

On June 7-10, 2015 the New England Water Environment Association (NEWEA) held their Spring Meeting and Exhibit in Bretton Woods, NH where water and wastewater professionals from throughout the region attended technical sessions and events over the multi-day conference. CEI Senior Environmental Scientist Jessica Cajigas served as the 2015 NEWEA Program Chair and participated in the opening session as well as moderator for a session on Sustainability – New England Success Stories.

Additionally, CEI Principal Engineer, Benjamin Lundsted, P.E. participated in the Stormwater – Designs for Watershed Protection session by presenting CEI's Crosby Brook (Putney Road) Restoration Study Project.

NEWEA is a volunteer organization of over 2,100 water and wastewater professionals who volunteer time, energy and expertise to preserve, protect and manage water resources. More information can be found at www.newea.org.
